Citizens' Group Studies Recent School Tax Rates

BEARDSTOWN — Superintendent Loren C. Lemmon has explained to members of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Education the details regarding taxes for schools during the years 1962-65 in connection with efforts to secure and retain capable teachers and provide adequate room in a constantly expanding community.

The total school tax increase this year, Lemmon said, was .369 over the preceding year, with the assessed valuation increased this year over last year.

Situation Changing — Mr. Lemmon stated that until this past year the educational rate was limited by law to $1.25 without a referendum. The legislature raised the maximum educational rate to $1.60, and the district, in order to provide salary increases for teachers, and other school personnel increased the educational rate 20c.

The building fund rate was increased from 25c to 37½c, he told the committee, and added that the increased assessed valuation this year over last year is $379,239.

The school district bonding power is limited by law to 5% of the total assessed valuation.

Name Vice-Chairman — Dr. B. A. Desulis has been named vice chairman of the Advisory Committee on Education, having been named to fill a vacancy on the committee created when Robert Huss was elected to school board membership.

Special Services Volunteer Program Unique For Students

A little known and somewhat unique professional - volunteer relationship exists in Jacksonville between the highly-skilled teachers in Special Services of the public schools and student volunteers from MacMurray College.

Special Services is that part of the educational system which provides tailored programs to meet the needs of both the gifted and the handicapped child.

Actually, Special Services is a relative newcomer on the American educational scene. Twenty-five years ago there were no reading improvement programs to help the so-called "slow reader" quicken his reading rate. There were no honor classes which today spark the capacity and stretch the imagination of the high-ability student.

The child of yesterday with limited mental capabilities attended no special classes which would help develop his abilities to their fullest, training him to become a self-sufficient individual and productive adult.

He does today. Mrs. Lucile O'Brien who devotes her talents to teaching five to eight-year-olds with limited mental abilities says, "When I teach a child to tie his shoe, I'm getting him ready for a job interview."

School By Phone And today's youngster temporarily immobilized by an injury or an extended illness — even a permanent disability — needs no longer to fall behind in his schooling.

A home teacher will tutor him or a telephone hook-up can be arranged which will bring the classroom to a student's bedside.

The importance and values, and some of the techniques of rescuing and developing human potential stilled by handicaps came out of the rehabilitation programs developed for military personnel during World War II.

The expansion of knowledge, triggered partly by the post-war technological explosion in the natural sciences, and sociological advances also have helped to spur new approaches in meeting the special needs of the talented or "gifted child."

Legislation passed in 1943 paved the way for special programs for the handicapped in public schools in Illinois. In 1945 the Illinois State Legislature earmarked funds in support of a statewide program in special education.

Jacksonville implemented a program in 1946, making it one of the pioneers.

Serves All Levels Special Services in Jacksonville's public schools is headed by Ivan Garrison with Mrs. Mary Walsh as assistant director. The program functions at all levels — elementary, junior high and in the high school. The teaching roster includes such professionals as speech correctionists, remedial reading teachers, social workers, a psychologist, and teachers whose backgrounds also include special training in dealing with the problems and needs of the physical handicapped, the mentally handicapped, and the gifted.

Jacksonville's 34 teachers in the field of Special Services may help as many as 1,000 students in a typical school year. The complex nature of the program, says Mrs. Walsh, doesn't easily lend itself to a situation in which volunteers can "really be turned loose."

She explains that the classroom teacher, because of her special training and background, must always assume and retain the responsibility for the individualized attention which is basic in the development or rehabilitation of children with special needs.

As a result, many public schools have not found a way to effectively use volunteer assistance.

Eight Years Old Since 1958 students from MacMurray have been associated with the Special Services.

The student volunteers earn no college credit; their efforts fulfill no graduation requirements. Their pay is in terms of self-satisfaction and a learning experience.

Their benefits — if they plan to become teachers in the field of Special Education, and most of them do — are in terms of an opportunity to observe and learn from an expert, and the advantages of getting to know and perhaps better understand children who are somehow different.

Compared with other volunteer ventures of MacMurray students, the number involved in this program has not been impressive.

Only two girls, Peggy Mundstock from Lake Zurich, Ill., and Linda Smith from Galesburg, serve as volunteers this year.

Miss Munstock assists Miss Patricia Wycoff in a special class at Jefferson School every Wednesday morning for nearly two hours. Miss Smith goes to Lincoln School on Wednesdays LINDA SMITH, MacMurray junior from Galesburg, "plays" with students in a special class at Lincoln School as they place colored blocks on a peg. The classroom teacher, Mrs. Lucile O'Brien, watches the exercise which actually helps children to learn to distinguish colors.

VOLUNTEER ACTIVITIES conducted by MacMurray students are channeled through Miss Delilah Newell, associate professor of education, who serves as liaison between the college and community agencies and institutions. Here, Miss Newell, on the right, and Mrs. Mary Walsh, assistant director of special services in Jacksonville's public schools, discuss ways MacMurray students can fit into the public school program as volunteers.

AND HERE PEG is at work with three children. They are identifying pictures of animals and talking about them as Peg places them on the board. Last year she was a volunteer helper at Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School. This year she chose to devote a couple of hours each week to assisting Miss Wycoff.

And it would appear that the local schools and students at MacMurray are both richer because of it.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took another sizeable drop last week, for the third week in a row. Experts blamed cutbacks in auto production, mostly.

It wasn't as large as the week before, which was the worst in four years. But it was nearly so. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 26.72 to 876.11, lowest since last July. It had dropped 30.85 the previous week, and 16.15 the week before that.

In three weeks it has fallen 73.72.

Experts continued to say they thought it was reaching bottom. "I think the market is at or near a turning point right now," said Robert H. Stovall, vice president of E.F. Hutton & Co. Eldon H. Grimm, vice president of Walston & Co., said the decline had a "silver lining"—in his opinion it has killed a possible tax increase.

Bradbury K. Thurlow of Winslow, Conn., said he believes prices are "at or near an important bottom."

Volume for the week was 43 million shares, down from 48 million the week before. A record volume of 53.4 million was set in the week ended April 15.

A drop in auto sales in April bore some blame for the market drop. Some industry spokesmen blamed it on congressional hearings, which tended to show that cars aren't as safe as they should be.

Of the Big Three, only Ford reported sales gains in the first 10 days of May.

General Motors, Chrysler and Ford all announced production cutbacks in May or June. But their output will still be at or near record levels.

The bond market reacted with all the signs of an indecisive woman as it wavered only to close with mixed results for the week.

Treasury bonds advanced, but one dealer said the sales volume was insignificant.

The corporate market did not fare as well. Most issues declined one-half to three-quarters of a point for the week.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for butcher hogs ended a seven-day upward trend last week after having topped at $26 a hundredweight, highest in almost two months.

The reversal came on Thursday and by Friday the top had settled back to $25.50.

The week's run of 27,500 head was the largest in three weeks and up 2,000 from the previous week. Prices were mostly 25 to 50 cents lower with the average estimated at $23.25 compared with $22.35 a week earlier.

Slaughter steers finished the week as much as $1 a hundredweight under a week ago. Slaughter under federal inspection was reported at 545,000 head. Buyers said it was the fourth successive week the slaughter had exceeded half a million.

April Deaths At Carrollton Ruled Accidental

CARROLLTON — Verdicts of accidental death were returned by the juries in the inquests into the deaths of Miss Linda Bushnell, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bushnell and James Russell Webster of Kampsville.

The two were killed in an automobile accident which occurred in April west of Carrollton on route 108 near the William Voiles farm. Webster, who was killed instantly was alone in his car and Miss Bushnell who was with three other young people in another car, died in Boyd Memorial Hospital shortly after the accident.

The same juries were used in both inquests by Coroner W. H. Wolfe with different foremen. The foreman in the Webster case was Francis Vaughn and the foreman in the case of Miss Bushnell was Gene Battly. Other members of the jury were Verl Owens, Robert Bandy, Sam Greaves and Mrs. Everett Mehl.

Volume for the week was 43 million shares, down from 48 million the week before. A record volume of 53.4 million was set in the week ended April 15.

A drop in auto sales in April bore some blame for the market drop. Some industry spokesmen blamed it on congressional hearings, which tended to show that cars aren't as safe as they should be.

Of the Big Three, only Ford reported sales gains in the first 10 days of May.

General Motors, Chrysler and Ford all announced production cutbacks in May or June. But their output will still be at or near record levels.

The bond market reacted with all the signs of an indecisive woman as it wavered only to close with mixed results for the week.

Treasury bonds advanced, but one dealer said the sales volume was insignificant.

The corporate market did not fare as well. Most issues declined one-half to three-quarters of a point for the week.

cle, a motor scooter and a motorcycle. It has not been recovered.

The military here emphasized that it had no substantiation to the report that Vance had been killed.

The second U.S. soldier kidnaped by guerrillas was seized Tuesday near Ban Me Thout in the central highlands. He was listed as a member of an aviation unit stationed at the new Pleiku airfield.

He was riding a Jeep about 18 miles from Ban Me Thout when he was stopped by a guerrilla squad of undetermined strength and led away, the spokesman said.

The vehicle later was found but there was no evidence to indicate the fate of the rider. Vance reportedly was taken to a Viet Cong village east of Bong Son, about 280 miles northwest of Saigon.

Col. Hal G. Moore, commander of the 3rd Cavalry Brigade, sent an entire battalion into the area Saturday, but found no trace of Vance. They killed seven guerrillas, however.

Moore said he had received a report that Vance was taken to a Viet Cong village and placed on display.

Vance was the first air cavalryman known to have been captured by the Viet Cong.

Stafford, making his second Gemini flight in five months, will be at the controls the first day as Gemini 9 attempts to catch and link up with the Agena after a four-hour chase. This is two hours less than the Gemini 8 pilots took to dock with the Agena in March before their sudden emergency landing.

Stafford said the rendezvous maneuvers will be similar in execution and time span to those which two moon-landing Apollo astronauts will have to make in returning to their mother ship in lunar orbit before starting the return trip to earth.

Two other types of rendezvous and docking procedures are planned for the third day of the trip. On one, the pilots will back about

BETWEEN YOU AND ME
BY MURRAY OLDERMAN
SPORTS EDITOR
NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The television set started to go fuzzy on him, and Max Alvis said to himself, "I've been watching too much of this television."

His head hurt something fierce, and he felt his neck stiffening up on him. Aspirins didn't help, and that's when Max decided he had something more than a cold.

He was in a hotel room in Boston on a trip with the Cleveland Indians. This was just two

So has Alvis, who has started the 1966 season as the hottest hitter in the American League for the Cleveland Indians.

But as the fever wracked him in that Boston hospital, he had his doubts.

"First, I wondered whether I'd make it," he said. "You know, spinal meningitis was just a scary name to me. I didn't know if it would leave me paralyzed, whether it would damage my brain, or what. The doctor told me, though, they caught it early and that I would be O.K."

Five weeks after the attack—July 31, 1964, to be exact—Max was back on the active roster of the Indians, weak, a little unsure, but a ball player again.

He's the picture of health, a sturdy built, strong jawed Texan who doesn't exude much color but gives Cleveland solid protection and an effective bat at third base. He'll hit his 20 home runs a year and bat anywhere from .250 to .275, though this season he shows symptoms of becoming a high-average hitter.

"This is the first year I've batted second in the order," he said. "I've always been a pull hitter. Now I find I can wait on the ball a little longer because I have to hit behind the runner to right field."

And how many of his hits in this short spring action have gone to the opposite field?

"Oh, about seven."

At the time Max made this calculation, the figure amounted to one-third of his hit production and the difference between batting over .400 and .275. As an insurance agent in his home town of Jasper between seasons, Max can make these calculations easily.

He was a fine halfback on Darrell Royal's first team at Texas in 1958. Darrell let him skip spring practice after his sophomore season to play baseball. Max batted .400 and cashed it in with a big bonus from the Indians. And Royal no longer lets his football players play baseball in the spring.

Alvis came up to the Indians as their regular third baseman in 1963, hitting his major league high of .274. The meningitis attack the next year left only one after-effect. It increased his vocabulary.

"It's caused by the meningococcus bacterium," he specified. I forgot to ask him to spell it.

Indy Driver, Rodeo, Killed In Warmup

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Young Mario Andretti set a new speed standard for the 57-year-old Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday and veteran Chuck Rodeo was killed in one of four weeks that blemished the fastest qualification session for the Memorial Day 500-mile race.

Andretti, native of Tieste, Italy, who won the U.S. Auto Club's national championship last year, captured the No. 1 starting position for the 500 at an unchallenged speed of 165.899 miles an hour for the 10-mile run and 166.328 for one lap around the 2 1/2-mile asphalt track.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, twice winner of the race, held the year-old records of 161.233 and 161.958. He was one of the four drivers who slid into the concrete retaining wall Saturday. He was not hurt.

Rodeo, 38, whose home is only a short distance from the old track, became the 57th fatality there. His car swerved left first against the wall coming out of the main stretch in view of a large part of a crowd of about 17,000.

Carl Williams of Kansas City, tracked the hottest rookie at the track this year, also escaped an injury in a crash, and Art Malone, Tampa, Fla., suffered only minor burns when his car hit the wall and caught fire.

Eighteen drivers qualified, leaving 15 starting spots open for the qualifying sessions Sunday and the following weekend. They averaged 160.743 m.p.h. for the tests, compared with 156.052 for the 1965 field.

Andretti, who resides in Nazareth, Pa., will share the three-car front row with Jimmy Clark of Scotland, the 1965 Indianapolis winner and world road racing champion, and George Snider, Fresno, Calif., who will be making his second 500 start.

As a rookie last year, Andretti finished third in the 500. Clark, one of the day's last runners, averaged 164.144 in a new Lotus-Ford, sponsored by the Chemical Division of Studebaker Corp., which quit making autos this year.

Snider, who ran before Andretti, briefly held the 10-mile record at 162.521 and the one-lap mark at 163.014. He drove the Lotus-Ford in which Bobby Johns of Miami, Fla., finished seventh in last year's 500.

Parnelli Jones, the 1963 Indianapolis winner, salvaged the reputation of the new super-charged Offenhausers by using one for the day's fourth best time, 162.484.

Another driver who bettered Foyt's record was Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., in one of the new Gurney Fords, with a 162.494 mark. Gordon Johncock, Hastings, Mich., just missed breaking the mark in a new Gerhardt-Ford, with 161.059.

Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., who had been rated a pole contender in one of his All-American Eagles, developed clutch trouble and didn't make an official run. He was left in a bind, with a commitment to prepare one of his cars for the Monaco Grand Prix race May 22.

Jack Nicklaus and Tony Lema muscled back into the lead after 54 holes of the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament Saturday, but Gardner Dickinson moved into contention with a blistering sub-par 66.

Bob Goalby, the second round leader, slipped on the front nine but rallied after the turn to remain in the race for the $20,000 first prize money.

Nicklaus shot a two-under par 70 over the 7,200-yard Lakewood Country Club course, while Lema, who has been in a slump for six months, carded a 69.

Goalby had a 71. Nicklaus and Lema both had 54-hole totals of 208. Nicklaus started the day one stroke behind Goalby, while Lema was two strokes back.

Goalby, Lema, Nicklaus, Frank Beard and Charles Coody had been deadlocked for first place after Thursday's 18-hole opener.

The day's most spectacular round was fashioned by the 39-year-old Dickinson, onetime star of Louisiana State University's golf team.

Dickinson, plagued by back trouble in recent months, started the day with a 67. He collected seven birdies but ran into trouble on the 16th hole, a tight, dogleg par 4.

Gamble Failed
"I gambled when I shouldn't," Dickinson said. "I used a driver. I hit the top of a fairway bunker and was down in a 'V.' I had to stand on my head to get it out and just topped the ball out."

He took a bogey on the hole, then parred in.

Dickinson had a 210 total and was knotted with Billy Casper and Australian Kel Nagle.

Beard and Goalby were one stroke behind Lema and Nicklaus.

Arnold Palmer, who hurt his back in Friday's round, withdrew before his starting time Saturday. He said he was still "in a great deal of pain." He cancelled all his scheduled appearances for at least a week.

Several times earlier this year Dickinson had the lead after early rounds in tournaments but dropped out of contention because of back trouble.

After the Masters six weeks ago, Dickinson dropped off the tour and began taking a special pill for his back. This is the first time since Christmas that I haven't been in pain."

Lt. Capel, 23, was on the Illini football squad in 1962, 1963 and 1964. In the 1964 season he played on offense, splitting the center duties with Dick Butkus, whose play on defense twice won him All America honors.

Panthers Claim District Title With Double Win

JERSEYVILLE — The Jerseyville Panthers got tight pitching and timely hitting to whip Southwestern 5-3 and North Greene 4-1, and claim their own District baseball title, here Saturday afternoon.

The two games in one day were forced by three rainouts last week. The Panthers will now tangle with Jacksonville in the first game of the Quincy High Regional Monday at 4 p.m.

Jerseyville came up with two runs in the top of the seventh to win the opener. Mike Hughes started the decisive frame with a double, with Don Trask driving the run home on a single. A wild throw sent Trask to third where he scored on Stan McGarvey's single.

Steve Watkins went all the way for the winners, giving up eight hits, striking out seven and walking two.

A three-run fifth and three-hit pitching by Lee Elliott and Hughes was decisive in the nightcap. Elliott worked the first six frames, whiffing ten batters and giving up five free passes. Hughes worked the seventh without giving up a hit.

Gerald Summers started the fifth with a double. Mike Cunningham singled him to third, with both scoring on Robin Schroeder's double. The final run scored on a wild throw.

Jerseyville will take a 7-5 record to the Regional.

Wills Sparks LA 4-1 Triumph Behind Koufax

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sandy Koufax scattered seven hits for his fifth victory and Maury Wills triggered a three-run sixth inning uprising with his baserunning, leading the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-1 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday.

Wills, the Dodgers' fleet shortstop, singled, stole second and third and came across on Willie Davis' double. Ron Fairly beat out a slow roller, sending Davis to third, and when Pittsburgh pitcher Steve Blass threw wildly on Lou Johnson's bunt, Davis crossed. Fairly scored on John Roseboro's infield out.

Koufax, who has lost once, blanked the Pirates until Roberto Clemente homered into the upper right field stands leading off the ninth inning.

Prior to that inning, Koufax was in trouble only once—when Bill Mazeroski hit a two-out triple in the seventh. But he got out of the jam by getting Bob Bailey to pop up.

Reds Edge Cubs 2-1 In 14th On Pavletich Hit

CHICAGO (AP) — Don Pavletich plugged Ferguson Jenkins' first pitch to him in the 14th inning for a double, driving in Pete Rose with the winning run in Cincinnati's 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

The Reds started the winning rally against Billy Hoelt, who relieved Dick Ellsworth after the Cubs' starter had allowed only seven hits in 13 innings.

Rose led off with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice by Vada Pinson. With a count of one ball and no strikes on Pavletich, Cubs' Manager Leo Durocher switched pitchers, bringing in Ferguson. Pavletich slapped his first pitch to left.

The Reds, shut out on four hits through eight innings by Ellsworth, tied the score 1-1 in the ninth when they pushed across a run with the aid of an error by Billy Williams. Tony Perez singled the run across. Cincinnati

No-Hitter In 2nd

Quincy Pitching Stops Mac Twice

Quincy right handers Dennis Trame and Herman Kruse had only three runs to work with Saturday afternoon, but managed to convert the slim output into a double-header sweep over MacMurray, by 2-1 and 1-0 tallies by virtue of respective four-hit and no-hit performances.

Trame continually worked out of trouble for the 2-1 triumph in the opener, while Kruse made it look easy for the nightcap win, retiring the last 19 Clan batsmen after yielding a free pass in the first inning.

Effectively changing speeds throughout, Kruse held the Highlanders to routine files and infield outs to gain his second win over the locals in as many weeks. The previous encounter saw the slim righty down the Clan 9-2 on five hits on May 6th.

The one-run heartbreakers dropped the Highlanders to a final 5-13 record for the campaign, and must have left Clan hurlers Terry Berwanger and Dave Berst wondering what it takes to win a ball game.

Berwanger, a stocky curveballing lefty, scattered seven hits in the opener only to have the locals score one run behind him, while Berst received no support at all. The Carbonado sophomore yielded only six hits in his seven inning stint, with the Hawks pushing across their solo tallies on back to back safeties in the seventh.

Kruse's second inning homer, and a run-producing single by Trame in the eighth netted Quincy's two-run output in the opener, with the Clansmen gaining their only tally on a fielders' choice in the seventh.

Mac threatened in both the second and third round by filling the bases with two out, but failed to move them around.

Kruse, who served as Quincy's slugging center-fielder in the opener, then took the mound for the night cap, and the sweep was soon completed.

Held scoreless through the first six innings, the Hawks gained their victory margin in the seventh when Kruse singled up the middle and came home on Mike Villa's towering triple to left-center.

Mac only venture onto the base paths came in the first when Bob Gay worked Kruse for a walk.

Max Alvis

years ago in late June, and by the time the trainer got him to the team physician of the Boston Red Sox, Max had made a self-diagnosis.

"I didn't feel too pert," he summarized. Max comes from east Texas — a little place called Jasper — where they talk like that.

The doctor was much more specific. Alvis had spinal meningitis, an often fatal, especially virulent infection which envelops the brain and the spinal system.

Another ball player once had it, too — an outfielder named Bruce Campbell who played for the Cleveland Indians and several other American League clubs just before World War II. And Campbell recovered to play again.

Green Paces A's To 4-2 Verdict Over Yankees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Home runs by Dick Green, who rapped out four hits, and Ken Harrelson led the Kansas City Athletics to a 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday night.

Mickey Mantle homered for the Yankees, who scored their other run in the ninth but dropped their second game in six since Ralph Houk replaced Johnny Keane as manager.

Mantle, whose fourth inning homer was the 475th of his career, tying Stan Musial for eighth place on the all-time list, left the game in the sixth after pulling a muscle in his left leg.

Roger Repoz, who replaced Mantle, touched off the ninth inning rally with a double and moved to third on Joe Pepitone's single. Paul Lindblad then replaced Kansas City starter Fred Talbot and Tom Tresh knocked Repoz in with a single.

Lindblad retired Roger Maris and Jack Aker came on to get the final two outs.

12th Annual Free Safety Check Lane Opens Monday

MOVE 'EM OUT—A pair of bulldozers were in operation at Sandy Beach Saturday afternoon. Wendell Peck of Arenzville brought a special blade for removing brush and trees knocked over by the dozer driven by Harold Wright at left. The final clearing will be accomplished this morning if weather permits.

WELL DIGGING operations began at Sandy Beach Saturday afternoon. Richard Bergschneider sets up his rig at the beach site in preparation for a 100-foot or so well.

Sandy Beach Progress

Project Sandy Beach flourished with activity Saturday afternoon as bulldozers, a well-digger, and volunteer clean-up crews pressed forward with the operation.

Alderman Homer Baptist held off volunteers until noon because of the wet grounds. After the sun made an appearance, the ground dried quickly.

There were spots in the cleared area that volunteers found somewhat muddy.

Bulldozers were on hand from Wendell Peck of Arenzville and the Morgan County highway department and Richard Bergschneider moved a well digging rig into place.

Bergschneider dug the first 24 feet before dark last night. Bulldozer operators will move in this morning to finish the final clearing of the area.

Any volunteers who wish to help pick up roots and branches are urged to visit the Sandy Beach area after noon today. There is still plenty of clean-up that needs to be done.

Alderman Baptist said Saturday night that the clean-up process would be finished and the area leveled if the weather holds dry enough for next weekend.

Alderman Carl Bourn, co-chairman and treasurer of Sandy Beach, announced that he had rented a post office box for contributions to the Sandy Beach project. Bourn said all contributions will now be received at: PROJECT SANDY BEACH, POST OFFICE BOX 268, JACKSONVILLE, ILL.

Appointment of four citizens to the Sandy Beach steering committee is expected Monday night at the city council meeting. The group will organize and begin a concentrated effort for funds.

When the site is finally cleared and leveled, the only thing that will prevent completion is adequate financing.

Girl, 11, Walks Into Moving Car On South Main

An 11-year-old South Jacksonville girl was reported in good condition at Passavant hospital Saturday night where she was admitted for observation of injuries sustained when she was struck by a car that afternoon.

A hospital spokesman identified the girl as Debbie Sneed, 11, of 517 West Greenwood, who sustained a head laceration when she walked into the side of a slow-moving car in the 1700 block of South Main about five o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Troopers stated that the girl had left the curb on the east side of the street with a companion, and when she reached the middle of the street turned toward her friend.

She then apparently turned suddenly and walked into the side of the car, driven by Norman Dawdy, 42, of Roodhouse, who was southbound.

Dawdy said he had anticipated the child crossing the street and had slowed down, but when she turned back toward the east side of the street, he assumed she would return there.

Dawdy was questioned by officers and not charged.

The girl was taken to Passavant hospital by ambulance.

Official Opening Set For Monday Morning; Test Run 1-5 Today

The 12th annual free Safety Check Lane, designed to combat auto accidents that arise from mechanical failures, will officially open with ribbon cutting ceremonies at 9 a.m. Monday at Kosciusko and West Morgan streets.

Co-sponsored by the local police, and the Jacksonville Independent Insurance Agents Association, the Safety Check Lane is free to the motoring public, and is open to trucks and cars alike.

Sunday, the lane will open from 1-5 p.m. in order to allow police to set up the various machines that will be in operation during the week.

The hours of the lane will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day through Saturday, May 21. Civic & Social Clubs Assist Various civic and social organizations will assist police with the operation of the lane throughout the week, as will representatives from the state and county police agencies.

Last year, approximately 3,600 vehicles were examined and as a result, the local police department was able to chalk-up their second national award in succession.

This year co-chairmen John Smith and Gerald Samples expect an even greater number of vehicles because of the publicity focused on auto safety by congressional inquiries.

Police have indicated that a few surprises may pop-up at the lane during the week in the person of prominent state officials, who have promised to try to visit the lane sometime while it is in operation.

Bicycle Check Lane
AMVET Post 100 will again man a free bicycle check lane all-day Saturday at the lane. Children with two-wheelers have been urged to bring their bikes to the lane for examination.

Refreshments in the form of Coke, Pepsi and 7-Up will be available to motorists as they pass through the lane, and a mobile unit from the Secretary of State's office will be stationed at the lane.

Persons who might discover that their drivers' license has expired will be able to apply for a new one through the mobile unit.

No Penalty At Stake
Police, as in the past, will not penalize motorists who might be found guilty of minor motor vehicle infractions or expired drivers' licenses.

Samples and Smith have indicated that when traffic becomes heavy at the lane, it will go into a two-lane operation, an idea instituted last year for speedier means of moving the traffic.

Too Little Information

One key trouble with our situation in Vietnam is that the American people are being told very little about the elements that go into the making of official policy decisions. Though it would be going too far to say that there has been an informational black-out in Washington, it certainly is true that the public is not being kept as well informed as it should be.

Just now this drought of information relates especially to the prospects for getting a civilian government into power through popular elections within a reasonable time. Premier Ky persists in saying that his military junta will remain in power for another year or more. Secretary of State Rusk maintains that Ky will not constitute an obstacle to transfer of power to a civilian government. The ordinary American citizen is left in confusion.

The problem was well illustrated by some remarks of President Johnson in connection with a high-level conference on Vietnam. The President, having had what he called "a very profitable visit" with Ambassador Lodge and other top officials, called in newsmen for a briefing.

It turned out to be not much of a briefing. The newsmen learned almost nothing new, though they were told that those around the table had exchanged ideas not only about the military situation but also about major issues in the economic and political fields. After doling out these not very nourishing crumbs, Mr. Johnson said this to the assembled newsmen: "I explained to these wise men that I wanted them to supply me with all the information they had. I have it now, and I've passed it on to you as much as I could."

Presumably the President does have all the pertinent information available. Some of it, doubtless, must be withheld for political or security reasons. But what purpose is served by relaying so very little of it to the American people? They have a right to know more than they are being told.

Dirksen's Accident

Senator Dirksen's broken hip is more than a personal misfortune. This accident, which will keep him more or less out of action for some weeks, also is a blow to the prospects for reconciliation of opposing political views in Congress.

This applies in particular, though not exclusively, to the administration's new civil rights proposal. In the recent past, Senator Dirksen has been a tower of strength in the area of civil rights by helping to compromise differences. Without him, previous civil rights bills might not have passed.

Though Dirksen has been opposed to the administration on the current bill, there was a good chance that some accommodation could be worked out. That chance has been reduced. Dirksen's influence will continue to be felt in this and other areas of concern, but some slowdown in the legislative process can be expected.

Dear Ann:

Ann Advises Counseling For "Babies"

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I have a feeling I am on the verge of insanity. I have two major problems. First a 16-year-old infant son who is 6 feet tall and weighs 218 pounds. The second problem is a 40-year-old moron—my husband.

Last evening I told my son to please straighten up his room. (It was beginning to look like a garbage dump.) He started to jump up and down like a three-year-old child and yelled, "I won't. I won't. And you can't make me!" Then he turned around and kicked me in the leg.

I was shocked. When I finally gathered my wits I really gave him a piece of my mind. My husband heard me, came into the room and shouted, "For heaven's sake, Edith. He's only a child."

I told him the "child" is twice as big as I am and I'm sick of his laziness. My husband says I expect too much of the boy and this is why he is rebellious.

I'd like your opinion.—SCRANTON

Dear Ann: What a peachy-keen start for a thoroughly messed up life. A 16-year-old boy who kicks his mother and is then defended by his father needs plenty of help—and fast. Talk to your doctor about counseling for both babies.

Dear Ann: I need advice on how to break my husband of the habit of throwing his clothes all over the house.

Tom was a bachelor (age 35) when I married him. I thought I knew him very well but I guess this is one thing you never know about a man until you live with him.

Last week I tried an experiment. For six days I left his clothes wherever he dropped them. On the bed posts this morning I counted four pairs of trousers, six shirts, six pairs of shorts and three bath towels. This does not include the stuff hanging on door knobs or thrown behind the bathroom door.

Tom and I read your column every day so please print the reply in the newspaper! P.S. I adore your answers.—CHAMBERMATRON

Dear Chamber: This is one answer you won't adore because I'm going to tell you to forget it.

It takes less energy to pick up after a man than it does to try and get him to change a life-long habit.

Those "anything-for-a-laugh" jerks hurt more people than they amuse.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If you have sons, teach them to put things where they belong and to pick up after themselves so their wives won't have to write to Ann Landers.

Dear Ann Landers: How does one go about telling good friends that their young son steals?

Every time this couple comes to our home and brings the boy something is missing. One day recently I had left some small change on the kitchen window sill. I know the boy took it because I saw the change when I was preparing the lemonade. The boy entered the kitchen as soon as I left. I returned five minutes later and sure enough—the money was gone. Please advise.—RB.

Dear RB: You haven't told me how old the boy is, and this is important. If he is seven or older, have a private talk with him—and give him another chance. If he continues to take things, you must inform his parents because he needs professional help. If he is under seven, tell his parents at once and suggest counseling.

Democarts Play It Cool
In Coming Election Tests

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Whatever the re-election worries of nervous first-term House Democrats, their party's high command remains cool and collected as it contemplates the November tests.

Some top men insist they still see no measurable evidence of a major anti-Johnson or anti-Democratic trend across the nation.

The White House now has in hand nearly 30 polls taken in various congressional districts. On balance they are amazingly favorable for the President.

One in Massachusetts shows a huge 88 per cent of those polled endorsing him. A New Jersey district nearly matched that with 82 per cent. In these and other eastern areas, Johnson actually poll 60 to 66 per cent of the vote in the 1964 election.

In the South, however, there would not seem to be a comparable advance in the President's status over its low estate of 1964. As a sample, an urbanized Alabama congressional district shows in a poll that 78 per cent of the voters think he is doing either poorly or "not good."

Alabama was one of five Old South states which went for Barry Goldwater in 1964.

Soundings of a more general nature, taken by key Democratic circuit-riders, suggest that things are good in Minnesota and also in Indiana, notwithstanding the dove-like utterances of Indiana's Sen. Vance Hartke.

The Democratic high command continues to believe that House losses can be held to 30 or 35, which is not deemed seriously damaging to the President's majorities. One leader has even gone back to his mid-1965 loss estimate of a mere 20.

An old Washington election hand thinks the really significant thing is that neither party appears to expect a large switch in the U.S. Senate, where Democrats now have a 68-32 edge.

In his view, if a genuine trend against the administration were at work or in sight, Republicans should reasonably be talking of taking eight or 10 seats from the Democrats. The best guesses actually are for a pickup of less than a handful.

This source argues that if this situation holds, it is tantamount to acknowledging that there is no hostile trend in 1966.

He contends further that if net Republican Senate gains are in fact limited to from one to three, any House gains up to 35 would have to be put down simply to a redressing of the "balance" lost in the Goldwater defeat. The net GOP reduction then was 38.

The "balance" would in truth be much less than that, since the Republicans still would have just 175 House seats and a majority is 218.

Democrats do, of course, have their customary organizational problems in many places—including New York, Pennsylvania,

Ohio and California. These were not crippling in the presidential race, but could hurt more in the off-year tests. But, again, top men decline to be gloomy.

They are not even distressed at fairly common reports from some of the big urban centers that frustrated Negroes are in an increasingly anti-Democratic mood. This restlessness is not taken lightly, but the realistic refusal to believe that large numbers of Negroes are ready to swing to the Republicans.

From January on, the Democratic professionals have seen their party affairs reported as a more or less continual tale of woe—grumbling over cutbacks in money and services at the national committee, a noisy party split over Viet Nam, the jittery maneuverings of the freshmen Democrats in the House.

Through it all, the cooler heads have stayed cool. They are ready for the hard planning now. And even the President, who too often is glibly accused of neglect and disinterest, is beginning to take a hand.

Frost Damage
To Up Prices
Of Fresh Fruit

By SALLY RYAN
NEW YORK (AP) — It looks as if the weatherman is in cahoots with the gremlins in the nation's food markets.

Federal officials predicted food prices would go down later this year, with a lot of ifs, including if the weather behaved. This week, freezes caused severe damage to the fruit crops in the Great Lakes region — damage that is likely to show up in the form of higher prices in the stores, first in fresh fruit and then canned and frozen supplies.

In southwestern Michigan, Clifford Conrad, Berrien County agricultural agent, said the losses in that bumper fruit-producing county alone might run $5 to $10 million.

"Cherries are about shot," said Frank Klackie, Kent County, Mich., horticultural agent.

In Ohio, serious damage was reported to the peach, pear and apple crops.

Apples were damaged in New York's Hudson Valley, berries in southern Illinois, and sweet cherries, strawberries and grapes near Erie, Pa.

The freeze came after heavy rains cut the onion, potato and carrot crops in Texas. Those rains already are being felt in higher vegetable prices.

Temperatures in the 90s in eastern Washington and dry weather have added to the woes of pea growers after one of the worst freezes in history last month.

Housewives may face higher prices for frozen peas as a result. Lettuce, delayed by cool weather, is increasingly plentiful, and prices finally are headed lower.

The federal government pointed to the possibility of lower prices later this year for live stock, poultry, eggs, potatoes and vegetables.

Pork, which played a major role in soaring food prices last winter, has been up and down this week.

Some beef and pork prices are reported lower across the country, with the emphasis on advertised specials.

South was one of those self-taught geniuses who consider that they can win every duplicate game if only they can get to play all no-trump contracts. Hence, his jump to three no-trump over East's spade overcall.

North wanted to get out of no-trump but passed unhappily because he knew by bitter experience that any bid he made would only elicit a further no-trump call from his partner.

West opened the jack of spades. East covered with the queen and continued spades after South ducked. South won the third spade lead, meanwhile discarding a heart and diamond from dummy. Then he cashed three clubs and noted that East dropped the five of hearts. He tried diamonds next and discarded dummy's last club on the third diamond. East shed the eight of hearts.

South had planned to throw East in with a spade at this point but his count of the hand showed that East was sitting with three spades and one heart.

Could East have blanked the king of hearts? Of course, he could, decided genius South. He led a heart, went up with dummy's ace and ran off the rest of the tricks to make five no-trump.

"Pretty good", chortled South.

"I wonder," replied North. "If you had bid the hand like a bridge player I would have played in hearts and made a small slam with no trouble at all. I would win the spade opening and lose the trump finesse. Then I would ruff the second spade and make the rest of the tricks by running off the rest of my trumps and squeezing West out of his stopper in either clubs or diamonds."

Sure enough. When the game was over it turned out that South's brilliant five no-trump was a bottom score. At every other table North had played four or six hearts and made 12 tricks.

FINDING THE WAY

Home—Where Heart Is

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The letter was from a young man who had gone to Viet Nam. Caught in the midst of that struggle, he was now looking at his life with new eyes. "When I get home," he wrote to his young wife, "I want to buy a house for us. I want something permanent and I don't want to look for some of the things we had thought were important before. When I get home, we'll buy a house."

Three days later, the telegram arrived telling of his death. Beyond the poignancy of this event is the yearning in those words, "When I get home." They imply that home is ideal. This is where we belong. As Robert Frost said, "Home is where, when you come back, they have to take you in."

All of the sentimentalities concerning home come welling up. The truth is that there has been so much that has been wrong about home. The story of the break-ups, the tragedies, the possessiveness, the unspoken hatreds and unhappinesses which have inhabited so many households poison the word "home." For millions in our own country, home is not a pretty word.

A man doesn't have to go off to a foreign country to discover that he has to return home. He can find himself in a kind of strange world, alienated by his business, by his companions, by his unhappiness. Living in the same house, he needs to come home. But what house will he buy? What are the bricks and mortar out of which he builds his dream house? The tragedy for so many is that they go through most of their years with this poignant yearning unfulfilled. These are the lonely ones who can never afford to be alone, persons who never really confront themselves, and who have never learned what it means to come home.

Jesus spoke of an at-home-ness, the living presence of God breaking through that alienation. He never put it more significantly for us than in the classic parable of the prodigal son.

It is really the story of "the waiting father." It is the record of a boy who threw away his inheritance before he came to himself. Out there he kept saying: "When I get home, I'll just be a servant, for I'm not worthy to be a son." When he came home, his father was waiting to welcome him into the family circle. He was home.

That's the journey many a person must make. It's coming home — for good!

Mature Parent Freedom Is Won

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Why did you put all the blame on the son of that Medusa mother who abused his wife? I am the son of a tyrant mother myself. She mixes into all my affairs, throws tantrums if I cross her, even swings her fists at me. Yet all our relatives say, "How your mother loves you!" I know other mothers who don't give their sons any freedom and think it is these women who deserve the blame and not their sons.

ANSWER: Where did you get your notion that tyrants "give" us freedom? Why should they? Whatever kinds of tyrants they are — parent tyrants, political tyrants, social class tyrants, racial supremacy tyrants — they don't "give" their victims freedom. They're hungry tigers who've got it made. They've caught their antelope and are too busy filling their emptiness with its life to be interested in "giving" freedom.

The pharaoh of Egypt didn't do it. The kings of France and czars of Russia didn't do it. George III of England didn't do it. And the tyrannical mother of the victim son I wrote about isn't going to do it. If he wants his freedom, he'll have to take it all by himself.

And maybe, in the end, that is just how it ought to be. If we can't take our freedom, the chances are excellent that we are not ready for its demands on us. Taking it before we're ready for it, we start whining about its demands the way the Israelites did after Moses "gave" them their freedom from pharaoh. They complained and complained to him about how they missed the cucumbers and melons of Egypt and about how cruel it was of him to have led them into the wilderness. They drove him to

Farm Census Figures Found Interesting, But Not Surprising

There's nothing really new about the report of the 1964 United States Census of Agriculture, which was released last week. But it is interesting just the same.

The report for Morgan county deals with the 1959-1964 period and it confirms observations made during that time by experienced farmers and people trained in phases of agriculture.

It shows that a great many people left the farm during that period, that farms are larger and the value per acre is considerably enhanced, that the farmers are growing larger crops on fewer acres of land, that they are using more fertilizer and better designed machinery to accomplish this goal, that it is costing more money every day to put in and harvest a crop.

That consolidation of farms does lend to economies, particularly in machinery inventory, that a lot of farmers don't have a cow or chicken on the place now, and that farmers are mighty important customers in their nearby trade area.

When the U.S. was first formed the Congress ruled that there should be a general census every ten years, but that agriculture was so important that it would be wise to see how it was doing every five years.

Robert Schall of Concord and a corps of trained assistants conducted the census in the fall of 1964, completing their tabulations early the next year. The report shows that Morgan county had 188 fewer farms than it had in 1959, when the census takers found 1,456 farms embracing 361,600 acres. In 1964 there were 1,268 farms on the same number of acres.

Up . . . And Up
The average size of the farms jumped from 234.9 acres to 270.4 acres. The average value of the land was set at a new peak of $379.53, a $61.50 hike in just five years.

This figure puts the value of the average Morgan county farm at $101,900, compared with $77,899 in 1959.

In the latter year there were seven farms in the county that occupied more than 1,000 acres. Five years later there were 16 farms in the 1,000-1,999 acre category, and two in the 2,000 acres or more class.

The 1959 census found no poultry farm in the county; now three are listed.

The commercial farms are not only larger, but they are selling more. The census shows 125 farms reporting sales of $40,000 or more in 1964. Five years before there were 71 such farms. The number of farms selling over $30,000 worth of products jumped from 271 to 316.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT!

Agriculture can't win it seems. For years agriculture was tarnished by a rather widely held belief that it was hopelessly impoverished and kept alive only by handouts from the public treasury. Then prices rose, and the farmers suddenly changed from a "poor relation" to a money grabbing plutocrat almost overnight, causing inflation, depriving hard put consumers of adequate food at prices they can afford, and upsetting the national economic timetable in general.

Neither picture of agriculture, of course, was true. Through it all the farmer has remained a hard working guy who takes his chances and hopes for the best, with rewards too often woefully short and full parity little more than a dream — even at today's higher farm price levels. The risks he takes in the routine business of farming and livestock raising would literally scare the pants off most business men. And his average profit margins are the despair of all but the most courageous money lenders.

fuel and fertilizer really shot up in the five years. Machine hire and custom work also hit an all-time high, as farmers learn that sometimes it is cheaper to hire specialized machines than to own them.

The charge for hired labor dropped a little during the period, although wages advanced sharply. Through management and cooperation many farmers are learning how to get along with a minimum of extra help — which is increasingly harder to find when needed.

Fertilizer sales really zoomed in the five years. In 1959 Morgan farmers bought 13,242 tons of commercial fertilizer and fertilizer materials. They bought 19,969 tons in 1964. Limestone purchases went from 35,705 tons to 52,905. Gasoline sales went to almost one million dollars.

Corn production in 1964 was 8,082,345 bushels, up 10% from 1959 and on 10% fewer acres. Soybean acreage went up 10% and the yield was a new high, 2,061,291 bushels. Both wheat acreage and yield advanced in the five years to produce 1,120,106 bushels in the county. The oats crop went off 70%, the grain sorghum acreage even more, and there were declines in rye and barley.

Alfalfa and red clover seed production was up strongly, with steep declines in sweet clover and timothy seeds, Irish and sweet potatoes, and fruits and vegetables for sale.

Familial milk cows and chicken flocks are getting scarce. Only 191 farms had a milk cow and 451 had any chickens in 1964. This compares with 508 and 806 five years earlier. Sale of whole milk was reported by only 27 farms, compared with 60 in 1959. And a lot of people got rid of their cream separators with only 28 farms reporting sale of cream as compared with 126.

Yes, the report is interesting. But the information can scarcely be termed surprising.

Trull To Visit 11 States In Dow Tour

Morgan county won't see much of Farm Adviser George Trull next month.

He will represent the farm advisers of Illinois in the tour of 11 north central states sponsored annually by the Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, Mich.

Farm advisers — county agents from 13 states will accompany Trull on a tour that will investigate almost every type of agricultural enterprise in this section of the globe.

They will study all types of livestock, grain, vegetable and fruit production, how it is marketed, how it is processed and how it goes into retail channels. They will also inspect factories whose output directly affects agriculture, marketing enterprises, outstanding farms, successful Extension programs, resource development achievements and research projects.

The trip will be by bus, leaving Des Moines Monday, June 6.

The group will get pretty close to Jacksonville as they inspect the Henry Longmeyer cattle feeding installation north of Greenfield June 8.

The next day will be spent in Peoria with visits to the Caterpillar factory, the U.S.S.A. research laboratory and Hiram Walker Distilleries.

At many of the group's luncheon and dinner stops they will be guests of the town's Chamber of Commerce or Farmers' club.

Special tours include Ford's Greenfield Village near Detroit, a water view of the vast freight handling port of Duluth, how the Red river valley of South and North Dakota looks from the air, an Indian "pow-wow" in Minnesota and a visit to the Strategic Air Command base at Omaha.

Dow Chemical, which began as a salt evaporating plant, now makes thousands of chemicals — many of which are used by farmers throughout the world.

Lysine Corn To Give World More Protein?

Senator George McGovern, former director of the U.S. Food for Peace Program, will be the principal speaker during the High Lysine Corn conference to be held June 21-22 at Purdue U., Lafayette, Ind.

His subject will be "The World Protein Gap — A Most Important War." The South Dakota Democrat is considered by many to be the architect of the new Food for Freedom proposals unveiled this year.

Purdue researchers in 1964 revealed that a mutant gene called opaque-2 produced corn of higher lysine content. Lysine, an essential amino acid, is present in only limited quantities in regular hybrid corn. Experimental opaque-2 corn contains nearly double the lysine content of corn hybrids currently produced.

High lysine corn, say many corn breeders, is an agricultural development of great significance, possibly rivaling the introduction of hybrid corn only 30 years ago.

If opaque-2 corn can be produced with a consistent amino acid quality and in high yields on a commercial basis, corn's future value as a major protein source for livestock and in human consumption will be considerably enhanced, the agronomists say.

Persons interested in the conference may secure full details by addressing Purdue's Division of Conferences.

Expect Smaller Wheat Crop This Summer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois' winter wheat yield is expected to total less than 56 million bushels, down 6 per cent from the 1960-64 average, the State Crop Reporting Service said today.

Estimated production of 55.4 million bushels would be 3 per cent below last year's crop. The predicted yield of 38 bushels per acre, however, would be 2.5 bushels above last year and 3 bushels more than the average for the past five years.

Acreage for harvest, estimated at 1.5 million acres, is 9 per cent less than last year and the lowest acreage for harvest since 1950, the service said.

Swarms Mean Termites?

Or Are They Ants?

When the average Illinois homeowner sees ant-like swarms in the spring, his natural—and alarmed—reaction is "Termites!"

Termites have been a problem in many areas, especially in southern Illinois. And these destructive insects are becoming more numerous in the central and northern parts of the state. But before becoming unduly alarmed, be sure your problem is termites.

H. B. Petty, University of Illinois extension entomologist with the Illinois Natural History Survey, gives these answers to commonly asked questions about termites:

What are termites? They are colonial insects that feed on wood or wood products, including paper. Organisms in their digestive tract convert wood cellulose into usable food.

Here's how you can distinguish termites from flying ants:

Flying termites — kings and queens — are always black. Flying ants may be black, yellow, tan or almost red. The rear wings on an ant are noticeably shorter than its forewings; the two pairs of the termite's wings are the same size. Ants have a narrow waist just behind the wing-bearing section of the body; termites do not. Termite antennae are straight; those of ants are elbowed.

Worker termites are white to cream colored. Worker ants — without wings — vary in color as do the flying ants.

How are termite infestations found? Swarms of flying termites usually appear in the spring, while flying ants swarm continuously from spring to fall. Mud tubes built over concrete and other obstructions positively indicate termite activity. These tubes are usually found on inside basement walls and over outside foundations. Weakened lumber may also show presence of termites. Tapping lumber with an ice pick or screwdriver provides an easy test for weakness.

How does termite damage differ from other wood damage? Termites eat only the soft part of the wood, leaving the annual ring intact. They leave the remaining shell in splinter-like layers. Only termites seal their runways and feed areas with mud. Unlike the termite, carpenter ants gouge large, smooth areas out of wood, disregarding grain. And their galleries are free of mud. Powder-post beetles make tiny tunnels in the wood, producing a fine, powdery sawdust. Several fungi also cause wood rot, but in this case the wood appears charred or crumbly with no apparent tunnels.

How soon will structural damage occur? Termites may feed in wooden buildings for years before they do any serious structural damage. Usually damage doesn't occur until the colony is 8 to 10 years old unless the ground contained a large population before the building was built.

Where are termite colonies located? Since termite colonies need a constant, controlled supply of moisture, most of them are located in the soil. They get into houses only in their search for food.

Why do termites build tubes? Since termites die rapidly under dry conditions, they maintain a constant humidity by building tubes. They also seal their feeding area with mud.

How do they enter a building? Wood in contact with the soil provides an unexposed path over which termites invade buildings. Basement windows, porches, door sills, wood supports through concrete slabs and siding that touches the soil are other possibilities. Cracks in concrete foundations and spaces in concrete block foundations also provide hidden entryways. When no "paths" are provided, termites will build mud tubes over the foundation and up into the building.

Control Before Construction

Best
It's far easier — and less expensive — to control termites before you build than it is to exterminate them from the finished building.

Here are some termite control suggestions from Petty for buildings under construction.

1. Remove stumps and wood debris from the building site before construction starts. Apply one gallon of ½ percent chlordane or 1 percent chlordane to each square yard of surface before concrete slab is poured. As the soil is replaced around the foundation or footing, mix the chemical with the soil. Use a rate of one gallon for every 3 or 4 linear feet with shallow foundations or for every 2 linear feet with deep foundations. Put insecticides in each space of concrete block foundations.

2. Do not bury scraps of lumber or other wood debris in the backfill.

DON KUHLMAN, U.I. entomology student, inspects termite mud tubes hanging from floor joists. Such tubes are a positive sign of termite feeding. Termites build these tubes between feeding areas to maintain a constant humidity.

WOOD IN CONTACT with soil provides termites an unexposed path into building. Basement windows, porches, door sills, wood supports through a concrete slab and siding that touches the soil may provide entry. Termites not only build tubes over obstructions, they also seal the feeding area in the wood.

WORKER TERMITES are about 1/8 inch long and white or cream colored. They eat the soft part of the wood, leaving the annual growth ring intact. Termites seal their runways and feeding areas with mud. No such tubes are present when carpenter ants or powderpost beetles attack wood.

FLYING TERMITES are always black. Flying ants may be black, yellow, tan or almost red. The hind wings of an ant are noticeably shorter than its forewings. The two pairs of termite wings are of equal length. Unlike the termite, an ant has a narrow waist just behind the wing-bearing section of the body. Termite antennae are straight; those of ants are elbowed.

Morgan Ag Clubs Name Delegates To 4-H Week

The agricultural clubs of Morgan will be well represented this year at the annual 4-H club program and festivities to be held at the University of Illinois June 21-25, says Ralph Romig, assistant farm adviser.

Representatives from nine clubs will be there for four days of education and recreation.

Specialists from all branches of the College of Agriculture will address the delegates Wednesday, with Dean Orville Bentley making the keynote address.

Thursday Dr. Keki Bhat, a newspaperman from India, will speak on "4-H and World Affairs."

The attendance fee is $18. The county 4-H Federation has subscribed $7 for each member, with the individual picking up the balance of the tab.

The delegates are:

Alexander Ag — Kenneth Zachary, David Bergsneider.

It will soon be time for haying too. Is that mower ready? How about the rake and baler? It won't be long.

Alfalfa is a holiday crop you know — needs to be cut Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day.

Remember a hay conditioner may cut drying time in half. This in turn saves more leaves. Might be worth looking into.

Check your hay field for insects. There are a number of them that could cause trouble for you.

A pessimist complains about the noise when opportunity knocks.

We have many ponds around and hope to have more, so perhaps this is appropriate.

Bass fishing tips —
1. Fish when it's still cold.

2. Anytime is a good time for fishing, but some times are better for catching. Spring and fall usually bring best bass fishing.

3. Fish the night shift. In summer big bass begin to feed at dusk.

4. Fish slowly. Be as deliberate as you can.

5. Change your tactics. Do something different frequently.

6. Fish the impossible places — lily pads, brush, etc.

7. Vary your depth. Go deeper as the temperature goes up.

8. Hide from the fish. Motion gives you away.

9. Try live bait when all else fails.

10. Fish often. You must have the line in the water in order to catch fish.

Are you ready for the children to get out of school? It isn't far off.

Now you should . . .
... Watch things grow.
... Prepare your camera for summer pictures.

... Get summer clothes ready.
... Begin vacation plans.
... Clean up the back porch and entry way.

... Mow the lawn.
... Plant flowers.
... Replant tomatoes.

If you don't like the weather in Illinois wait a few days (or hours) and it will change.

To Hear Grain Transportation Report Tuesday

The completion of a two-year study in the analysis of grain transportation has been announced by Robert M. Schneider, director of the Illinois Department of Agriculture.

The study, designed to find a more effective method of transporting Illinois grain and grain products to both domestic and overseas markets was made by the Department of Agriculture in connection with Dr. Walter Wills and his staff at Southern Illinois University, School of Agriculture, Carbondale. It was financed with matching funds from the Illinois Department of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Wills will present the study to interested groups at three Illinois area meetings:

Northern Illinois — May 16, Ramada Inn, Junctions Route 23 and Interstate 80, Ottawa.

Central Illinois — May 17, Illinois Building, State Fairgrounds, Springfield.

Southern Illinois — May 18, Colonial Inn, Highway 51 south of Sandoval.

All meetings will start at 10 a.m. with a tentative 3 p.m. adjournment.

A panel discussion by industry representatives will follow the study summary. Time will be available for open discussion by those in attendance.

McGovern Holds U.S. Farmers In No Way Liable For Inflation

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — A quiet-spoken man who looks the part of a professor has become a leading figure among those classed as liberals on American farm policy.

He doesn't hesitate to take on President Johnson, himself no mean battler.

The man is George McGovern, Democratic senator from South Dakota. In recent weeks, he has attacked what he views as anti-inflation policies unfair to farmers with the combative-ness he showed during World War II when he made 35 missions as a B24 bomber pilot.

McGovern has risen fast as a spokesman for those who have been insisting that the government carry out what they regard as its promises and commitments to the nation's food and fiber producers. He is serving his fourth year in the Senate and is a member of its Agriculture Committee.

When the Johnson administration took the line several weeks ago that food and farm prices were inflationary in character and were threatening to force the President to propose an income tax increase, McGovern promptly called this a misjudgment of the situation. He insisted that the administration back up.

He was among the first of the farm leaders to argue that farm prices cannot be a threat to economic stability because they are below the parity-price goal of federal farm-aid legislation — a goal first set up in the New Deal days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Parity Drummed Down
In fact, when the administration took first action to put a lid on farm prices, the South Dakota noted that those prices then were at only 82 per cent of parity. They since have declined to 80 per cent.

There can be little doubt that the drumbeat of McGovern's criticism of an administration of his own political party contributed greatly to a change in tactics in farm prices. In fact, the administration has pulled back from some of the actions which McGovern criticized.

"I strongly resent the current efforts of some administration officials to blame farmers for the inflation caused by the Viet Nam war," he told the Senate. "We are not rolling back wages and salaries."

To Raise Federal Wages
"Instead, a bill is on the way through Congress with administrative backing to increase government salaries. We are doing nothing about the 3 to 8 per cent increase in shoe prices. Agriculture has been depressed in relation to the rest of our economy since 1953."

McGovern said the President is allowing his council of economic advisers to determine farm and anti-inflation policies in apparent disregard of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

"I appreciate the serious inflation problem with which we are confronted," he said. "I applaud the President's desire to prevent a price spiral. But I deplore the resort once more to the old, handy formula of making the farmers pay the price."

40 Senators Agree
A measure of the degree of McGovern's new leadership is shown by the fact that he was able to get 40 Senate colleagues — Democrats and Republicans — to join him in sponsoring a resolution which would prohibit government action to keep farmers from getting parity.

Those joining him included Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and George T. Aiken, of Vermont, ranking Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Aide to Kennedy
Before winning his Senate seat, McGovern was named Food-for-Peace director and special assistant to President John F. Kennedy in 1961, a post he held until he ran for the Senate.

He had been elected to the House of Representatives in 1956 and 1958 and earlier was a professor at Dakota Wesleyan University.

As a senator, McGovern was the first to suggest the present federal wheat stabilization program. And he is in the forefront of those advocating a broadened food-for-freedom program.

Of course, not all farm groups or leaders agree with McGovern in his support for federal farm programs. Naturally, those who want less government in agriculture disagree with him on many matters. These include the influential American Farm Bureau Federation. But he gets strong support from the National Farmers Union and the National Grange and some wheat grower organizations.

PREPARATIONS FOR GEMINI 9

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

The Gemini 9 spacecraft is already in place for the United States' next manned space flight about the middle of this month. It was hauled up to the top of its Titan II booster, as shown in the picture, about a month ago. Even then it had been at Cape Kennedy for some time being prepared for its flight.

Gemini 9 was flown from the McDonnell plant in St. Louis to Cape Kennedy in March a few weeks before the Gemini 8 mission was launched. Gemini 9's first stop on the road to orbit was the Manned Spacecraft Operations Building on the Merritt Island Launch Area (MILA) just across the Indian River from Cape Kennedy. This was the first building on Merritt Island to be completed. It is designed to handle both the Gemini and Apollo spacecrafts. Several final modifications were made in the Gemini 9 in the operations building. Some of these were suggested by the spacecraft's crew astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cerna. The astronauts had worked closely with the engineers from the time they were chosen to make the flight.

Originally Stafford and Cerna were backup pilots. When the Prime crew for Gemini 9, Astronauts Charles A. Bassett II and Elliot See Jr., were killed in a crash at McDonnell on March 1, Stafford and Cerna became prime pilots. At the time Gemini 9 was just being prepared for shipment to Cape Kennedy.

This was the first time in the U. S. Space program that a backup crew had to replace the prime crew for any reason.

Fitted With Explosives

When the final modifications of Gemini 9 were completed it was trucked over the MILA cawway to the Pyrotechnic Installation Building in the industrial area on the Indian River side of Cape Kennedy. Here it was fitted with the explosives needed for its flight, including the astronauts' ejection seats. Next came the installation of the life support system for the astronauts.

Gemini 9 was now ready to go to Pad 19. If it were scheduled for a mission longer than three days the fuel cells used on this mission would be serviced first. On Gemini 9's short flight battery power is all that will be needed.

After Gemini 9 was placed atop its booster all the access doors and shingles were removed and every system in the spacecraft connected by cables to the instruments in the blockhouse. The McDonnell crew is now spending about sixty percent of their time checking out the spacecraft.

Let's Go Birding

Youthful Courage

By Emma Mae Leonhard

The following offered to us by Arthur Hart of Arenzville it too good not to share with you readers.

As told to me by a friend: "Cass County has many wooded areas; but my favorite is one of sand and clay soil, slashed by a deep ravine, the steep sides of which are shingled with ferns. In the bottom a never-ending rivulet of clear, cold, pure spring water bubbles toward Prairie Creek; while overhead, tall graceful, mixed hardwoods, mostly oaks, provide ample nesting sites for birds.

Bird Heaven
In late April my wife and I strolled through this "Bird Heaven" checking on spring migration as well as the growth of the delicious Morels — or anything of unusual interest for that matter. Thus it was that we spotted two rather large grayish birds perched on a fallen tree trunk spanning the ravine a rather considerable distance away. Approaching with great caution—later found to be unnecessary—we decided that they were young, but nearly fully grown, Great Horned Owls.

Although they watched us intently, they did not appear to be frightened and even permitted us to sit close enough on the bank that we could note the dark horizontal markings on their breasts, the rufous tinge on the wings, and the erect head feathers that form the 'horns.' It made us chuckle to see them blink those large yellow eyes, sometimes simultaneously, as though they were solemnly winking at us. This was our chance for an Owllet portrait—If we had only brought the camera.

Gambling on the training of our friends to obey parental orders "Now stay right there until we bring your lunch," I hurried home and soon was back with my 35mm with telephoto lens attached. One bird had disappeared, but one accommodatingly remained! A picture from the end of the tree trunk would be good, but a closer one, better; so I cautiously edged out over the abyss toward my subject, shooting a frame at intervals until I was within 5 feet of young "Big Ears."

Warning
Obviously he (or she) thought it wise to warn me not to overlap my rights as an uninvited guest. He slowly arose on those wobbly legs, raised his wings and ruffed his feathers until he appeared three times his normal size, lower his head in a belligerent manner, and snapped his black bill with surprisingly loud "Clacks." The "act," ludicrous though it was, won my admiration.

It was a display of real courage by the very young in the face of tremendous odds, so I left as quickly as possible — with a picture, I hoped. I didn't have to "hope" for memories of an impressive experience. They were for real.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

By John Rankin

Tom and Billy decide to explore the old house that everyone says is haunted. They press on inside in spite of wallings and creaking, but when they see a headless man they run. Sergeant Burke cruising nearby stops them, and they tell him their story. The three return though Sergeant Burke is very skeptical. But again there is a walling and a headless man appears then everything is suddenly covered with a dense darkness.

A deadly silence followed, as though Satan himself might at any moment appear, and then suddenly there was light again. And standing in the center of the room in the bright sunlight coming in through the window, a well-dressed man of middle age bowed politely to his bewildered guests.

"I trust that you and your young companions will forgive my rather strange behavior, officer," he said pleasantly. Sergeant Burke returned his service revolver to its holster and stepped forward. "Who are you? And just what is the meaning of all this hanky panky business?" he demanded tersely.

"I'm a writer of crime stories," the stranger acknowledged with a warm smile. "And while my method of finding material for my stories may appear rather unique, I assure you it is quite harmless."

Tom and Billy moved from behind the sergeant then, relaxed and grinning broadly as they faced the good-natured writer.

"Hey! I'll bet you're that Rubinkoff guy or whatever his name is that writes all those creepy television stories," Billy chirped.

"Didn't take you long to spot me, did it sonny? At least I write some of them," he acknowledged with a modest grin.

Officer Has Questions
"But how did you happen to land in this place?" Sergeant Burke wanted to know. "And what about those ghastly sounds, and the crazy lights and all the other strange things that went on here?"

"When I came out here some years ago and moved into the house next door I soon discovered an underground passage leading to this old beer garden of prohibition days," Rubinkoff went on to explain. "Since I'm also a pretty fair magician it was simple enough for me to produce just about any illusion I wished—including a man without a head."

Back out to the street a little later with Tom and Billy in the front seat beside him, Sergeant Burke paused a long moment to peer pensively across the lawn at the old brick house slowly slipping into the shadows of early evening.

"My aunt Harriet always said there was something strange about most writers," he muttered. Then he stepped on the starter and the patrol car pulled from the curb and headed toward town, leaving a trail of dust that tailed off slowly and settled in the shrubs and vines growing along the elm-shaded street.

Prayer Poem

Flick Of A Switch

By Mary Pence Claywell

With a flick of a switch . . . a light comes on;
With the flick of a switch . . . you can heat an iron;
With the flick of a switch . . . there is warmth and heat,
With the flick of a switch . . . you can light a street;
With the flick of a switch . . . you can curl your hair,
With the flick of a switch . . . there's heat for pain,
And the flick of a switch . . . can run a train;
With the flick of a switch, there are pictures, grand,
And it's like a wand . . . in a doctor's hand:
Like sands of the sea . . . it's too great for pen,
And all because . . . of a boy, named "Ben."

There are fine young lads, in the world today,
Dear Lord, who tinker around and play,
Yet, away down deep, in some eager mind . . . a "Ben" to find:
Please give them wisdom . . . and Dear Lord, skill,
And lead them according . . . to Thy Will.
In their quest for "new" and "pleasing" things;
All this . . . we ask . . . in Jesus' Name!

MIXED-UP GARDEN

JEFFERSONTOWN, Ky. (AP)—Robert E. Cassidy recently scored a horticultural first of some kind: he grew tomatoes on Irish-potato vines. Cassidy had planted both in his garden but somewhere along the line, pollen from the tomato plants wafted across and settled on the potato blooms.

In a short time, three thumb-size tomatoes appeared on four of the potato vines.

HIGH WATER

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

PART TWO
Not until the rains ended could the water lower into its own ravine around the oak and on under the wrecked bridge. "Whoosh!" called the sassafras, "Where are you? Look and see how I have grown!" No answer.

"What has happened now," the oak prodded, "Tell us where you have been. There is hardly any water in sight."

"No," came a muffled voice, "I am too busy."
"Doing what?" questioned the impatient sassafras. The creek only gumbled.

New Jackstones
"Did you bring down some new pebbles for the little girls' jackstones?" the oak inquired soberly, "I shook loose more acorns for their teasetts."

"Nice ones all along my banks," the creek replied shortly, "But I have not a friend left."

oak suggested. "I did. He is still MAD." The oak persisted, "What did you do?"

Unwelcomed "Gift"
"I got off his land — but I had to leave the mud. He and his boys had to hoe it away from the sprouts or they would have all died."

"Couldn't you do something for all of them?"

"Such as what?"

The sassafras shook its leaves at the listening creek, "Why dig them a swimming pool; then they could all have fun."

There has been a steady decline in the number of executions in the United States in the last 35 years, despite a tremendous population explosion. The annual average has dropped in the northeastern United States from 31 to 7, from 21 to 9 in the north central states, in the southern states from 84 to 36 and from 19 to 11 in the western states. In Europe, countries outside the Iron Curtain, capital punishment is rapidly being abolished.

One-Fourth of Mankind

(24) What Next for China?

by Don Oakley
and John Lane

The Day of the
"Agrarian Reformers"

Great Leaps —
Forward or Backward?

One-Fourth of Mankind...

The spiritual atom bomb that the revolutionary people possess is a far more powerful and useful weapon than the physical atom bomb.

"Courtesy," said the revered Confucius, "is not extended to the common people and punishment is not served up to the lords." Therein lies one touchstone to 4,000 years of turbulent Chinese history.

Another is the fact that China has always had too many people and too little arable land. A third is psychological. It is not yet clear whether the proud Chinese are yet willing to take their place as an equal among equals in the modern world community.

Beneath the surface changes wrought by the Communists, the Chinese remain Chinese—unwarlike (despite the hysterical rantings of their leaders), illogical, unrealistically egocentric. Instead of Confucius, it is the writings of Mao that are diligently studied for the magic formulas which will solve all problems, from increasing factory production to overcoming the "dragon" of U.S. imperialism.

The present Communist regime is often compared to the Ch'in dynasty, which first unified the warring Chinese kingdoms in 221 B. C.

Just as the totalitarian Ch'in ruthlessly stamped out all opposition, standardized the language and regulated weights and measures, so the Communists when they came to power in 1949 set about standardizing the political thought and regulating the lives of 450 million human beings—now grown to 700 million.

But the Ch'in, for all their cruelty, left China the legacy of unity and centralized government. It may be that the Communists, when they pass—as they will—will be viewed as a catalyst that finally rid China of its repressive landowning gentry and brought about industrialization.

It is a law of history that a nation's interests survive its revolutions. The Chinese remember when they were the cultural and political overlords of less advanced peoples on their borders—Korea, Mongolia, Burma, Thailand, Viet Nam. Even Sun Yat-sen dreamed of the day when China would reassume this role. Ironically, the only nation that supported China in its 1962 border war with India was Chiang Kai-shek's Taiwan.

Ironically again, if the law is true, it is not America but Russia, holding vast lands once belonging to the Middle Kingdom, who has most to fear a clash with an aggressive China.

Traditionally, however, the Chinese have believed it is their superior virtue and culture, not arms, which is their strength. And this may be a hopeful thing as her former tribute-bearers go through their own struggles to enter the world as independent nations.

The coming years will demand great forbearance and wisdom, coupled with measured firmness, on the part of the West—a patience to match the fabled patience of the Chinese.

In recent months, China's subversive "diplomacy" has suffered reverses around the globe. The old Communists realize they must soon pass from the stage and are afraid and distrustful of a new generation in the wings.

The last chapter in the story of China, this unique and most ancient of civilizations, is far from written.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Journal:

VETOED — President Johnson has vetoed the bill admitting Colorado as a State. We received this intelligence by telegraph last night.

There is no question but what Jacksonville will secure the location of the Industrial University, which would insure for the future an importance to our county second to none in the entire North-West, and might ultimately in bringing here the Agricultural Bureau, now under the supervision of the Interior Department at Washington, and probably fix this city as the permanent location for the State Fair.

This was really counting chickens before the eggs were laid. Champaign county got the university, the "superintendent of the agriculture commission" was elevated to full cabinet rank and Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has so many employees you couldn't jam them in west central Illinois, much less Morgan county. The department continues to be run from Washington, and Springfield got the state fair.

Otherwise the prediction came true.

Something must be done about the cows running at large throughout the city.

COLONEL JAQUESS — The numerous friends of Colonel Jaquess in this community, who never lost faith in his honor and Christian character, will rejoice to learn that he has had his trial at Louisville, Ky., and has been acquitted without the jury leaving their seats. There are newspapers mean enough, because he had been such a brave and efficient soldier in the cause of the Union, to brand him with infamy without waiting the results of legal investigation.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: Rev. Col. Jaquess, indicted at Louisville for murder in procuring an abortion on the person of his mistress, has been acquitted, says the Chicago Times.

The Rev. Jaquess, first president of the Illinois Conference Female College, managed to keep himself in hot water most of his life. He was transferred from here to the Chaddock School for Boys and organized the 99th Illinois Infantry Regiment in 1862. This was called "The Preachers' Regiment" because so many of the ordained brethren joined its ranks. He was chased out of command when he specifically disobeyed Lincoln's orders — and on his own went to see Jefferson Davis in an attempt to close the war. This was in 1864 when things were all going for the Union and a negotiated peace was the last thing Lincoln and his Cabinet wanted and was exactly what Davis wanted.

Taking off his uniform Jaquess got a cushy job with the military government in Kentucky, but was promptly indicted on a charge of rape. He beat this rap by getting on the other side of the Ohio River. He took another try at carpet-bagging early in 1866 and was indicted again. Doubtless both charges were entirely trumped-up, even though the state was in charge of Union men. So the Rev. returned to clerical garb. At the last meeting of the Board of Town trustees, R. Reynolds presiding, it was voted to improve the grounds purchased some years since at Diamond Grove for a new cemetery.

Sheriff Palmer has issued in another column a special proclamation, one that will doubtless interest a certain class of our citizens — not announcing a day for fast and humiliation, but a day on which he will publish the delinquent list of taxes.

HAVELY & SANDS' MINSTRELS — The entertainments given by this superior troupe of artists on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, were well attended and elicited the warmest applause. Our citizens have seldom enjoyed so rich a treat as given by this troupe.

On last Saturday night a well come rain laid the dust on our streets and gave a start to the springing vegetation. The dust, by the way, had become an intolerable nuisance. Ground under the constantly passing vehicles to a fine powder, it raised with every breath of wind, invading the lungs, stores and dwellings of our citizens, and hanging a constant cloud over the city, causing many worthy people to pine for the luxury of street sprinkling, as enjoyed in such seasons by our sister cities, Springfield and Quincy. Can't our present enterprising and energetic Board of Trustees get up a Sprinkler to keep down the buoyant and intrusive summer dust?

We learn that a large breadth of land has been planted in corn this season, the work of planting being generally completed throughout the county.

A resident of this city was last week fined for whipping his wife. He returned home and repeated the feat, when he was again arrested by policemen Gregory and Smith, and provided for a season with board at public expense.

From the Carrollton Gazette: A number of plank walks have just been completed in various parts of the city.

Mr. Ornan Pierson, one of our enterprising merchants, is making extensive and very desirable changes in his residence—much enlarging the same and adding to its appearance.

Frederick Shafer, we are informed, intends laying off an other addition to Carrollton. The town seems to be spreading immensely, and it is unfortunate that Apple and Macoupin creeks are so near.

Mean whisky had control of the town Saturday night.

May, 1866

The demand for petroleum in Europe alone for the year 1866 is estimated at 90,000,000 gallons. The consumption in 1864 was 30,000,000 gallons, against 10,000,000 in 1862. There is also a brisk demand for it in every country in the world that has learned the value of artificial light and of machinery.

We have a report of a great victory of the Chinese Imperialists over the rebels in the northeast. Fifty thousand Tzeping are said to have been slaughtered or taken prisoners. Since the advent of warm weather the cholera has broken out at the coast towns of Holland and in the interior of Brittany, between the French ports of Brest and St. Nazaire.

The other day a man got entangled in the crinoline of a woman who was walking along Ludgate Hill, London, and was thrown to the ground, and so severely injured that death ensued from effusion of blood on the brain.

A curious family has just been established in the Jardin des Plantes, in Paris. In an iron cage have been placed a young lioness, an Algerian wild boar, and a little dog. The last is quite the master, the lioness generally amusing herself with teasing the boar. When, however, she goes too far, the dog interferes and re-establishes order.

HUMORS of the day

A dentist of our acquaintance says that it is much easier to take the Tartar off a woman's teeth than off her tongue.

The following is an Irishman's description of making a cannon: "Take a long hole, and pour brass or iron all around it."

A Scotchman asked an Irishman, "Why were half-farthings coined in England?" Pat's reply was: "To give Scotchmen an opportunity of subscribing to charitable institutions."

"I think," said a fellow the other day, "I would make a good Member of Congress, for I use their language. I received two bills a short time since, with requests for immediate payment; the one I ordered to be laid on the table, the other to be read six months hence."

A QUAKER'S ADVICE—Never scold a woman, least she scold better than thee.

DOMESTIC

May, 1866

On the 10th of May Jefferson Davis was indicted for treason by the Grand Jury of the United States District Court now in session at Norfolk, and the trial of the prisoner, it is supposed, will take place in June.

The Memphis Argus proposes making a new State out of West Tennessee and North Mississippi, to be called the State of Jackson, with Memphis for the capital.

A letter to the Alton Democrat gives the particulars of the hanging of five men by the people of Jersey County, Illinois, for horse-stealing. The slack administration of justice against this class of offenders, and the persistent refusal of grand juries to indict them, appears to have infuriated the people and determined them to take the matter into their own hands.

Louisville is suffering from a visitation of rats, and a city ordinance is proposed giving a premium of one cent a head for every Norway rodent that shall be duly produced before the city treasurer. It is said that a man of ordinary industry, working eight hours daily, could earn $5 to $15 per day by killing rats, even at this low rate.

Judge Abell, of the First District Court of Louisiana, has decided the Civil Rights Bill to be unconstitutional, and not binding on the Court. He argues that the present Congress is unconstitutionally constituted.

The Boston Traveler says that, within a circle of 20 miles of Boston, there now live nearly one-third of the population of Massachusetts, or considerably over 400,000 people.

The Attorney General of Wisconsin recently delivered an opinion in the case of a man who had served in the rebel army, and was afterward elected town-clerk in Red River, in that State, to the effect that his past disloyalty irrevocably unfitted him for office.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Nevada recently went on a little frolic and came to grief. Being ex officio Warden of the State Prison, and in that capacity having received a lot of new uniform clothing for the convicts, he put on a suit and went into town. But he was immediately apprehended, taken before a justice of the peace, and sent to the prison as an escaped convict.

More and more Illinois people are involved in the world's basic work.

Illinois people who are employed at Caterpillar Tractor Co. make up a growing community—about 38,000 in four metropolitan areas today... more than double the number in Peoria alone 20 years ago.

Already Illinois' largest private employer, Caterpillar will create thousands of additional job opportunities in the years ahead... as new factory, office, and research facilities now under construction are occupied.

What's behind this continuing expansion? Primarily, the world's economic growth. For Caterpillar products serve man's basic needs—build highways, mine ores, drill for and pump oil, construct dams, carve useful farms from dense jungles.

To people, of course, such growth means more than "a job." It means a satisfying career with good pay—and opportunities for advancement. More than 16,000 Illinois men and women have been with Caterpillar from 10 to 25 years... nearly 3,400 have over 25 years of service.

If you're looking for a career opportunity with a growing company, contact the Employment Office at the Caterpillar plant nearest you.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

HOG PRICES MAY RECOVER DURING NEXT FEW WEEKS

Hog prices have trended downward since Christmas. Some recent quotations were $8.00 below the high of last December. Now that prices have come down so much, they are in a position to make a good seasonal recovery.

Last year's prices went up from about $18.00 in April to over $24.00 in July. Such a big seasonal rise is very unusual. The usual rise is around $3.00.

Prospective Supplies Are Small. According to figure in the quarterly Pig Crop Report issued in March, market receipts of hogs in May and June should be smaller than last year. Supplies in the last half of this year promise to be only moderately larger than in 1965.

On last March 1 the number of hogs weighing 60 to 120 pounds was 5 percent smaller than a year before. Those hogs will make up most of the market supply during May and June.

An earlier report indicated that sow farrowings began to exceed year-before levels last November. Farrowings in that month were 3 percent larger than in 1965. A part of this increase will be offset by farmers holding back more gilts for breeding. Thus we expect that market receipts in June could be close to the levels of a year before.

July-August-September. Market receipts may exceed 1965 levels by a small amount beginning in July. This expectation is based on the fact that the number of pigs weighing under 60 pounds on March 1 was 6 percent larger than last year. A part of this increase will be balanced-off by the holding back of more gilts.

Hog prices averaged $24.00 in the summer quarter last year. While prices may not do quite so well this year, they should be far above the 1960-64 average, which was only $17.60.

The Fall Market Should Be Good. While prospective market supplies for this fall are a little larger than last year, they are far below normal. Farmers reported intentions to increase March-April-May farrowings by only 9 percent. This increase is only about half as much as would be required to restore pork production to the 1959-63 level—with no allowance for population growth.

In 1965 hog prices went up from $23.00 in September to $29.00 in December. The average for the October-December quarter was $25.25. The five-year 1960-64 average, however, was only about $16.00. The average may be above $20.00 this year—if supplies are no larger than is now indicated.

1967. Some farmers are already quitting the hog business. Others are starting or expanding. Since present and prospective prices are quite favorable, the starts and expansions will likely exceed the quits for several months. Thus we expect a further increase in hog production in 1967.

Prices will trend downward until low returns check the expansion in production. The turning point in prices may be the fall and winter of 1967-68.

LAW on the farm

LEGAL RESTRICTIONS ON SURFACE WATER

Most Illinois farmers consider excess surface water a liability which must be removed by some kind of drainage system. It is estimated that we have 6 million acres in Illinois with a network of tile drainage. Increasingly, however, farmers are converting surface water into an asset by constructing farm ponds which store the water for possible use at a later date when rainfall may be inadequate to keep wells full and crops growing.

Are there any legal restrictions as to how the farmer may use this surface water? Do adjoining landowners have a right to it?

In general, the farmer who impounds run-off surface water may use all of it, to the last drop, even if this means completely stopping the flow of water which used to flow into a lower adjoining landowner's pond. Surface water may be used for any purpose, but a farmer's right to sell such water to others is not absolutely certain. It may clearly be used for watering livestock, irrigating cropland, providing recreation, and supplying the needs of the farmer's household.

There are three important legal restrictions to watch out for:

1. If a dam is to be constructed, make sure that the water will not back up onto adjoining lands.

2. Overflow water from a pond or small lake must drain onto the neighboring land at the same place that it did before using a natural drainage course.

3. Surface water must not be withheld maliciously to injure neighbors.

These are legal rules and restrictions for surface waters. Water flowing in watercourses such as streams, rivers, and creeks has another set of legal rules. In such cases, use is more restricted and a reasonable use rule comes into play. Stream water law will be covered in another article.

Brown Leaf Spot in Alfalfa Early This Year

A severe outbreak of brown leaf spot, a fungus disease of alfalfa, has made an earlier-than-usual appearance in the southern third of Illinois.

"The disease is not new to the state," says G. H. Boewe, associate plant pathologist of the Illinois Natural History Survey, who identified the disease. "Some brown leaf spot is present nearly every year in alfalfa fields of the state. It is usually most prevalent in June and July."

The disease appears on alfalfa leaves as irregular tan spots with dark borders. Severely diseased leaves become light brown in color, wilt and drop off prematurely.

Dr. Moore reports that the disease seems to be most severe from Pinckneyville in Perry County north to Bond and Crawford Counties, although a thorough check has not yet been made.

No fields north of the counties named have been examined, except for Champaign County. Boewe examined some alfalfa fields in Champaign County on May 9 but found no evidences of leaf spot.

The cause of the early infestation, discovered on May 5 this year, cannot be determined, but Boewe says his guess is that the unusual spring weather may be responsible. He points out that the disease is invariably most severe on the first growth of alfalfa and diminishes on later growths.

He says the only control measure for brown leaf spot is cutting of the alfalfa crop in the early bud stage before the blossoms appear.

HOG BUYERS WILL OPEN NEW PIKE STATION MONDAY

PITTSFIELD — The new Interstate Producers Livestock Association buying station here will be open for business Monday. Located four miles west of Pittsfield on route 54, the station will have daily hog markets Monday through Friday.

Cecil Turner, former manager of a Rockford buying station, is manager of the new station. Turner has not yet moved his family to Pittsfield as a new home is being built for them here. James Kurfman of Liberty is the assistant manager. The Kurfman family is now living in Pittsfield.

WEATHERMAN FOULS FARMERS' PLANS

The weather keeper for the month of May certainly fouled up the first half of his time in office and he will really have to go the limit to redeem himself. Everybody is against him.

Actually things are not much behind historical schedule, but they are far behind what a vast majority of the farmers planned. They had everything ready to finish corn planting by the first of May.

Real early planted corn, now more than a month old, is just sitting around with a yellowish cast and hoping for the best. Corn that hasn't sprouted yet is abiding its time, but some of the weaker members of the family won't make it and thus plant populations are bound to be below those projected.

Wheat, oats and pastures are doing well, but they'd welcome a warm touch and some sunshine.

Still Plenty Of Time To Plant Tomatoes

URBANA — Unseasonably cool weather throughout the state has slowed some garden activities, but there's still plenty of time to plant tomatoes. To have tomatoes throughout the season, University of Illinois horticulturists suggest that home gardeners plant both early and main-crop varieties. A list of varieties recommended for your area is included in U. of I. Circular 882, "Illinois Vegetable Garden Guide." You can get it from your county farm adviser.

Using a starter fertilizer when transplanting will get your plants off to a fast start. An all-soluble fertilizer high in phosphorus — 10-52-17 or 10-50-10 — works well. Mix about two tablespoons of fertilizer to a gallon of water. Then use about a cup of the solution per plant.

Tomatoes can use another "shot" of fertilizer about the time fruit begins to set. Two and a half pounds of ammonium nitrate, two pounds of urea or five pounds of nitrate of soda per 1,000 square feet will fill this fertilizer need.

Stakes Conserve Space

Tomato plants require 9 to 12 square feet per plant. But if you garden plot is small, stakes can be used to grow the plants more closely. Tomatoes grow well either on the ground or staked, but plants grown on the ground require less work, produce more per plant and may be less susceptible to blossom-end rot. Staking means cleaner fruits, easier picking. If tomatoes are grown on the ground, mulching will reduce anthracnose and fruit rots and help keep fruits clean. Mulching also conserve moisture and control weeds.

If you choose to stake and prune your tomatoes, try this modified system which works well in Illinois: Shortly after transplanting, drive a stake about 6 feet long and 1.5 inches in diameter into the soil 8 to 10 inches deep and 3 inches away from each plant. When the plants are 12 to 15 inches high, remove all but one main stem and tie it loosely to the stake, using soft twine or cloth. As the plant grows remove the shoots, or "suckers," which develop between the main stem and the leaves, up to the first fruit cluster. Above the first fruit cluster let the shoots develop two leaves and then pinch off the tips. Tie the plant loosely to the stake every 10 to 12 inches.

Using fungicides will greatly reduce tomato diseases that might harass gardeners. U. of I. Circular 912, "Tomato Diseases and Insect Pests," gives full details. This circular is also available from your local farm adviser.

Time To Harvest

Looking ahead to the time when you can really enjoy your gardening efforts, the horticulturists have these harvesting tips: Harvest the fruits when they are pink except during periods when the daily mean temperature is above 75 degrees F. At such high temperatures, pick the fruits just as they are turning color and keep them at 68 degrees F. for further coloring. Tomatoes will be firmer and have better flavor than those ripened on the vine when temperatures are high. Fruits exposed to direct sunlight may reach a temperature 20 degrees higher than that of shaded fruits.

3. Avoid all contacts between woodwork of the building and soil. Use chemically treated lumber where wood is close to the soil.

4. Provide ventilation openings in the foundation. This will dry the soil in unexcavated areas. Take care of any drainage problems in this area. Remember that termites perish rapidly under dry conditions.

5. Install a termite shield between the foundation and the superstructure to help detect an infestation. A shield will not keep termites out of a building, but it will force them to build their tunnels in the open where they are visible. If there are breaks in the shield, termites will find them and invade the building undetected.

6. If possible, provide enough clearance beneath all parts of the building to allow for inspection.

Following these precautions will provide good insurance against a termite invasion. However, don't be alarmed if you find termites in your house. Study the situation carefully to see how serious the problem is. If you think you can do the exterminating work yourself, or want more information, ask your county farm adviser for a copy of NHE-57, "Facts About Termites."

If your termite problem seems extremely complicated, and most are—contact a reputable, well-established exterminator.

Select Exterminator With Utmost Care

Termites are becoming more of a problem every year, so you may discover that the pests have invaded your house. Or perhaps you have already discovered them. In either case, ridding your home of termites can be a complicated job and you might need the services of a reputable exterminator.

If you discover termites, don't become alarmed, advises H. B. Petty. "Take your time and study the situation carefully to see how serious your problem is. It takes years for termites to cause serious structural damage," he observes.

Then, if your problem needs the attention of an expert, select a dependable exterminating company. As with any other business, workmanship varies between companies. A "fast buck" rather than a "good job" than do a good job, but most companies give excellent service and are a benefit to their community.

Petty has these suggestions for selecting a dependable exterminating company:

1. Do not accept as bona fide badges or pocket credentials from itinerant exterminators who solicit door-to-door business.

2. Check with your better business bureau for companies they suggest. Or, if there are no exterminators in your community, check with the better business bureau in the city where the company is located. Friends who have employed exterminators may also have suggestions.

3. Get bids from two or more companies.

4. Ask the company representative any questions you may have about their methods.

5. Ask to be billed for the work. This gives you time to observe results of the extermination. If company representatives demand payment before they do the work or immediately afterwards, this may indicate they want their money so they can conveniently — and hurriedly — leave town.

Before you sign any contract, read it carefully. Be sure the company can back up its work with re-treatment if control is not satisfactory. Reputable companies have earned their good standing in the community and will re-treat if necessary.

Some "fly-by-night" operators make it their business to prey on senior citizens. Pensioners or widows whose houses represent their life savings are prime targets. Scare tactics, "planted damage," and other devices are employed to convince the elderly to use the services of the "fast operator." Such operators often balk the unsuspecting into a repeat treatment, saying that "conditions in the neighborhood have changed, making re-treatment necessary."

So, study your situation carefully and deliberately, says Petty.

Crimsons Capture District Title 10-3

Jacksonville High rocked Ashland pitching for 11 hits and Rich Coble twirled a three-hitter as the Crimsons rolled to a 10-3 triumph over the Panthers, to win the championship game of the JHS District tournament, Friday afternoon.

The Crimsons, who made it all the way to the state finals last spring, will now meet the winner of the Jerseyville District in the first game of the Quincey Regional Monday afternoon.

The winners got to Ashland ace Cal Forman for three in the first, two in the third and two in the fifth.

Coble, who fanned 13 batters and walked a pair, also led the bat parade with a three-run homer in the first and a triple, Stan Hayes, Dan Brooks and Ken Miller each contributed two hits apiece.

The Crimsons made it 5-0 in the third, Miller singled and stole second with two out, scoring on Hayes' shot up the middle. After Hayes pilfered second, Brooks' bloop to right center scored the second run.

Panthers Narrow Score

Ashland got on the scoreboard in their half of the fourth. Forman, who collected two of the Panthers' hits, singled with one out and shortstop Mike Hardy blasted a Coble fast ball in the hole between left and center, with the ball rolling across the road and into an adjacent yard for a roundtripper.

Ashland drew within 5-3 with a single run in the fifth. Klein drew a walk with one away, followed by a free pass to Herman Mallicoat. On a ball hit back to the mound, Coble slipped on the muddy field, leaving all runners safe. The run scored on a passed ball.

Coble led off the fifth with a long triple, as the Jacks pushed across two more. Brooks' single scored Coble, with Charley Robinson's long double chasing Brooks home.

A three-run sixth wrapped up the day's scoring. Tendick singled and Miller walked to start the frame. An Ashland boot, a walk to Brooks and singles by Ed Winger and Hayes did the damage.

Jacksonville will take a 12-5 record into the Regional next Monday.

Giants Nip Mets In 17 Innings 5-4

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Davidson lashed a two-out home run in the 17th inning, giving San Francisco a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets Friday night and extending the Giants' winning string to 12 games.

Davenport, who had come into the game in the seventh inning, homered over the left-field fence off Dave Eilers, the sixth Met pitcher, to decide the marathon contest.

The game, longest in the majors this season, consumed 4½ hours.

Bob Priddy, the fifth San Francisco pitcher, was the winner. The extra-inning victory was the Giants' third during the streak that began April 29.

Willie Mays' eighth-inning home run off Gordon Richardson pulled the Giants even at 4-4 before a record single-game crowd of 56,658 at Shea Stadium. Mays' drive over the center-field fence was his 10th homer of the season and the 515th of his career.

Mantle Triggers Yankees To 4-2 Edge Over A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mickey Mantle doubled in one run and scored another in the first inning, triggering the New York Yankees to a 4-2 victory over Kansas City Friday night.

It was the Yankees' fourth victory in five games since Ralph Houk took over from Johnny Keane as manager.

Whitey Ford started for New York but was forced to leave the game after the second inning when his left elbow became sore. The soreness was reported to be minor.

Kansas City's Chuck Dobson started the game by walking Roy White. One out later, Mantle doubled to right-center field, driving in White. Mantle went to third on Joe Pepitone's fly ball and raced home on Dobson's wild pitch.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Roberto Clemente tripled in the seventh inning and scored the tie-breaking run on Jim Paggiaroni's sacrifice fly as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 Friday night, snapping a three-game losing streak.

Clemente's hit to left center came off reliever Phil Regan, who came in for Joe Moeller. Pittsburgh sent starter Claude Osteen to the showers in the fifth.

The Dodgers tied the game 3-3 with three runs in the sixth. Pittsburgh's Woody Fryman, making his first major league start, checked the Dodgers on seven hits to record his second victory against no defeats. Culver's Wilson Earning Keep Despite Low BA

CANTON, Mo. — Bob Wilson usually bats near the end of the lineup for Culver-Stockton College, but his seventh or eighth place position is no reflection on the catcher's value to the team.

Wilson's eighth-inning home run off Gordon Richardson pulled the Giants even at 4-4 before a record single-game crowd of 56,658 at Shea Stadium. Mays' drive over the center-field fence was his 10th homer of the season and the 515th of his career.

JHS's Steve Bockmeier was second low with a 78, taking a two-stroke penalty when he lost his ball in the middle of the fairway on one hole. The two players as well as the team champion advance to the state finals.

Shaw, Saukees Take District Title Game, 4-0

PITTSFIELD — Steve Shaw struck out 14 batters and gave up only four hits in hurling Pittsfield to a 4-0 shutout over Griggsville for the championship of the Griggsville District here Friday afternoon.

The game was moved to Pittsfield because of wet grounds at Griggsville.

Pittsfield got only three hits off two Griggsville hurlers, but put all of them together in a decisive four-run second inning for all the offensive punch it needed.

Two straight walks and a Griggsville error started the second for Pittsfield. Dave Shaw doubled in two runs, and Dan Butler and Marty Booth each singled home a run.

Pittsfield will now play the winner of the Kinderhook (West Pike) District in the Quincy in the Quincy High Regional Tuesday afternoon.

Sherry Chokes Off Sox Rally For 5-4 Triumph

DETROIT (AP) — Larry Sherry came on in the eighth inning and choked off a Chicago threat, then ended a rally just in time in the ninth, preserving a 5-4 victory for Detroit over the White Sox Friday night.

Sherry came in after Tommy Agee beat out a bunt and Floyd Robinson doubled off Detroit starter Danny McLain, who had allowed only four hits through seven innings.

Sherry struck out Pete Ward, got Tom McCraw on a pop fly and Gene Freese on a grounder to short.

In the ninth, however, the White Sox cut the deficit to one run on a walk, John Romano's single and Agee's two-out triple. But Sherry ended the game by getting Robinson on a line drive.

Lau will leave for his home at Key Biscayne near Miami, Fla., to recuperate in several days and return to Baltimore in about two weeks for a checkup. An Orioles spokesman said it has not been determined when Lau could play again.

Jackson doubled home two runs in the fifth and scored on Mike Shannon's single. The pitcher drove in Jerry Buchek with a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Shannon homered off starter Ken Johnson in the fourth inning, and the Cardinals scored their last two runs in the eighth as Tim McCarver tripled in Charlie Smith and scored on Javier's single.

Indians Nip Birds In 11 Innings, 4-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Leon Wagner raced home in the 11th inning as Jerry Adair threw the ball into the dirt at home plate, giving Cleveland a 4-3 victory over Baltimore Friday night.

Wagner's run was the second of the inning. The Orioles had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the 11th on singles by Adair and Brooks Robinson sandwiched around Luis Tiant's walk to Frank Robinson.

Dick Hall came in to pitch for the Orioles at the start of the bottom of the 11th and gave up consecutive singles to Chuck Hinton, Wagner and Fred Whitfield for one run.

Wagner held third as Max Alvis forced Whitfield at second, and Hall then loaded the bases by walking Vic Davalillo intentionally.

Pedro Gonzalez then grounded to Adair, but the second baseman threw the ball into the dirt trying to get Wagner at the plate. Adair was charged with an error.

Oliva's Hot Bat Lifts Minnesota To 9-5 Decision

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota's Tony Oliva drove in four runs as the Twins went through six Washington pitchers en route to a 9-5 victory Friday night.

In the third inning, Oliva slammed a triple off relief pitcher Dick Lines, bringing in two runs. Jimmie Hall followed with a single, driving in Oliva and giving the Twins a 4-1 lead.

Oliva slammed a double to right center in the sixth off the Senators' fifth pitcher, Mike McCormick, knocking in Jim Kaat and Rich Rollins. Earl Battey's score earlier in the inning gave the Twins a 7-3 lead.

The Senators scored two runs in the top of the sixth on a single by Don Lock. Washington's Fred Valentine led off in the first with a 390-foot home run into the left-center pavilion.

Washington 100 002 002—5 8 1 Minnesota 018 003 20x—9 11 2 Duckworth, Lines (5), Humphreys (3), Hannan (5), McCormick (6), Cox (7), and Casanova; Kaat and Battey, Zimmerman (9). W—Kaat 3-3. L—Duckworth 0-3.

Home runs—Washington, Valentine (3).

Farrell, Wynn Combine To Whip Phillies, 1-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dick Farrell allowed only one hit in eight innings — Tony Taylor's triple in the fifth — as Houston nipped Philadelphia 1-0 Friday night on Jim Wynn's homer off Chris Short in the ninth.

Wynn's homer, breaking up the duel between Farrell and Short, sailed off the left-field roof with one out and was only the third hit off the Phillie Phanther.

Short walked Dave Nicholson, but got the next two batters. Claude Raymond replaced Farrell at the start of the ninth and saved the one-hitter by retiring three straight Phillies.

Houston 000 000 001—1 3 0 Philadelphia 000 000 000—0 1 0 Farrell, Raymond (8) and Bateman; Short and Dalrymple. W—Farrell 1-1. L—Short 3-3.

Home runs — Houston, Wynn (6).

ROCHESTER COPS TITLE

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Rochester Americans whipped in three first-period goals and defeated the Cleveland Barons 3-2 Friday night to capture their second straight American Hockey League Calder Cup championship.

The Amerks won the best-of-7 game series 4-2.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The Iron Curtain countries are taking advantage of a split in the West to determine the course of the Olympic Games. That's the only way to explain the awarding of the 1972 summer Games to Munich, Germany, and the winter Games to Sapporo, Japan.

And where were you at Pearl Harbor?

While the United States and Canada make their pitches for the Western Hemisphere, the other countries of the free world lean to Europe and the Orient. And in between stand the Iron Curtain boys with the crucial votes that resolve the difference. They actually decide the sites.

"And the best friend they have," says one amateur official close to the scene, "is Avery Brundage."

Brundage, the capitalist than whom there is no more of (how do you like that syntax, baby?), is the president of the International Olympic Committee, has been since 1922. Just as the boys were sitting down to vote on the winter site the other day, and Canada hoped its pitch for the Banff area in the Rockies would succeed, Avery reminded all that august Olympic officials didn't have time to watch bird watchers. The wildlife people of Canada had lodged a protest against the Olympic bid, fearing invasion of their privacy in the Sawback range.

Avery's timing couldn't have been worse. That's why it's common gossip the Communist countries perpetuate him in office. Meanwhile, down the drain went the estimated million bucks the Canadians had invested in their skill for the Games.

Not that the Japanese sat around on their honorable ancestors waiting for seconds.

Bob Beattie, head coach of the American ski team, was over in Grenoble, France, recently, for pre-Olympic meetings. The '68 Winter Games will be held there.

"A Polish official told me he was voting for Japan," said Bob, "so I knew what was coming. The western countries split. The Communists all vote as a bloc and decide it."

"I'll bet at least 80 per cent of the men who did the actual voting have been to Sapporo on visits."

Now there's nothing like a little jaunt to Japan and lily gardens and geisha houses to win friends and influence people, though theoretically lobbying is verboten in the sacrosanct circles of the Olympic ideal. As a matter of fact, the Japanese have been known to bestow unique souvenirs of Japan on the right officials — cameras and tape recorders.

An Olympic official I talked to scoffed at the idea that the IOC could be swayed by such trivia because its voting members represented royalty and extreme wealth. Well, it has been my experience that the most avid free loader of all is the rich guy, who'll go to extremes to wangle a "comp" to a sports event.

The Japanese have a very material reason for wanting the Olympic winter games. Beattie, who happens to be in the ski business beside running our competitive program, says that a million pairs of skis were sold in this country last year. And half a million were imported from Japan. So the publicity that ensues from a winter Olympics can't do the industry any harm.

Beattie had frankly expected Canada to get the Games (though Salt Lake City had also made a perfunctory bid for the United States) because the World Ski Federation had made it clear it backed Banff.

But he's not mourning. "The kids will like the trip to Japan," he shrugged. "Like their Olympic 'fathers' before them."

Young Heifers Hoof It Out With The Law

The action was a little "wild and woolly" around the town for a brief spell Friday evening before a couple of critters were finally corralled by panting firemen and police.

Two young black angus calves, apparently seeing the bright lights of the city for the first time, vamoosed from the back of a Wohlers Brothers stock truck about 6:30 p.m.

One bailed out on the public square, and a second left the truck at South Main and College.

Freedom for the second stray was short-lived as traffic and the public square closed in, and officers made their capture.

But for her foot-loose bovine friend, the stay in town was a bit more eventful.

First located at South Main and College, the calf headed south on Sandy, across backyards to Rockwell, down to the Town Brook, where it ran along the Brook to Morton.

With the law in hot pursuit, the calf headed back to Fayette, forded the Brook again, and headed north to Anna street. It then changed course and stirred up the neighborhood in the vicinity of South Diamond-Edgemoor-Rosedale and Grove streets.

Still being trailed, the calf headed north again up Diamond Court to Prairie and escaped for a short spell before being spotted on North Diamond and Norfolk and Western tracks.

Officers closed in and cornered the calf in the Eli Bridge Company lot between Fire Chief Dale Bond's car and a fence.

Conduct Rites For Ella Ashby

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Ashby were conducted at 2 p.m. Friday at the Williamson Funeral Home with Reverend John Henschke officiating. Mrs. Doris Thompson sang "Shadows" and "In The Garden," accompanied by Miss Mahala McGehee at the organ.

Caring for the flowers were Fern Haigh, Leah Caldwell, Algertie Dowland, Josephine Muckleston, Lena Melton and Eloise Hawks.

Palbearers were John Stewart, Harry Story, Leon Stewart, Hugh Bradshaw, Archie Brownell, Russell Wade, Lambert Brochhouse and James Young.

Participating in O.E.S. rites at the funeral home Thursday evening were: Betty Houston, worthy matron; Carrol Houston, worthy patron; Ruth Dinsmore, associate matron; Robert Dinsmore, associate patron; Clara Scott, conductress; Wilma Simmons, Martha; Mabel Roodhouse, Electa; Lois Whitworth, warden; Claude Lewis, sentinel; June DeVore, chaplain; Hugh Bradshaw, marshal; Lorraine Farrell, organist and Nan Johnson, soloist.

Burial was in Memorial Lawn cemetery.
